Scott Baron & Associates

Protecting New Yorkers Rights for 20 Years

When Howard Beach native Scott Baron opened his full-service law practice in 1994, his goal was to serve the legal needs of the community that he was raised in. "I wanted to provide my childhood neighborhood with a firm that understood who its clients were and what they needed," recalls Baron. Now, as he celebrates the 20th anniversary of that same firm, Scott Baron & Associates, P.C., Baron remains true to his original mission. He says, "I'm using my 25 years of experience to offer a highpowered litigation firm to the same community that supported me at the start." Today, Scott Baron & Associates,

P.C. has law offices in both Howard Beach and Yonkers, where teams of top personal injury attorneys work to help clients who have suffered serious physical, emotional, or mental harm. The clients that the firm serves believe that another individual may have been responsible for their injuries, and Baron and his associates work to make each person feel at ease in the midst of crisis. "Every single client has an entire legal team behind his or her claim," explains Baron, who notes that it is both a duty and a privilege to protect his clients to the fullest extent of the law.

Since Scott Baron & Associates, P.C. is a personal injury firm, Baron and his team of attorneys represent clients who are involved in disputes alleging wrongdoing or damage to another person's rights, reputation, or property. Cases could center around automobile accidents, defective products, infliction of emotional distress, intentional misconduct, or negligence. Some cases that Baron and his attorneys commonly handle include dog bites, slip and fall injuries, and wrongful death claims. According to Baron, although an injury sustained may be minor or small, the client may still be entitled to significant monetary damages and recovery of medical expenses.

Scott Baron & Associates, P.C. aims not only to handle each client's case strategically, but also to help restore harmony to his or her life following the dramatic experience. Baron understands that choosing a law firm is a difficult decision, and can guarantee that at Scott Baron & Associates, clients will be efficiently guided through the legal process, from the initial consultation, all the way through the completion of the case, and even after the case has been closed. Baron makes it a priority to get to know his clients just as well as he knows his staff. "Over 25 years of experience in this business has taught me that a qualified and dedicated team is always better than a solo act," says Baron.

A strong upbringing with an emphasis on the importance of hard work helped shape Baron into the businessman that he is today, explains longtime friend and president of the New York State Court Officers Association, Dennis Quirk. "Scott's mother raised two sons by herself, both of whom grew up to be very successful, which really says something," notes Quirk. "Scott now has three great sons of his own, and if you spend any time around them, you will see how respectful they are, which is a true testament to how he brought them up.” According to Quirk, who has known Baron and his family for over 30 years, these admirable character traits are what his law practice is built upon. “Scott is an excellent attorney who provides top-quality service,” says Quirk. “Not only is he very professional, but he is also extremely caring towards every client, which helps him to do a great job with every case that the firm handles.”

After being raised in Howard Beach, earning a SUNY undergraduate degree, and eventually a St. John’s University law degree, Baron developed a deep appreciation for the community of New Yorkers that surrounds him each day. Baron and his associates strive to give a great deal back to the community that has supported their firm over the past 20 years. In addition to providing aid to underprivileged children each year, Baron participates in the annual NBA Cares weekend, in which he is invited to work with NBA athletes on a community building project. This past year, Baron and the athletes participated in the Kaboom Playground Build. In past years, Baron has traveled across the country to partake in the event, visiting cities including New Orleans and Houston.

“Scott Baron and his practice are integral parts of the Queens community,” says New York State Senator Joseph Addabbo, who has worked with Baron over the course of several years. “In Howard Beach and beyond, Scott and his team treat each personal injury case with care and professionalism, whether it be a car crash or an incident of negligence. Scott’s charity and volunteer work also speak to his dedication to the general public. I admire his efforts in contributing columns to our local papers and participating in community events.”

Baron has also made significant contributions to the Seton Foundation for Learning, which provides assistance to children with physical, mental, and emotional disabilities. “He does a lot of charitable work for a lot of different organizations, but he has always been instrumental in supporting the foundations that I’m involved in, including the Seton Foundation for Learning,” says Quirk, who is the board chair of the organization. “He always comes forward when we reach out to him for assistance, and he’s made significant monetary contributions. He really is a stand-up guy.”

Baron says that he attributes the longtime success of his firm to the strong team that he works with, noting that some employees have been with Scott Baron & Associates, P.C. since the doors first opened in 1994. “There is staff has been with me from the start,” says Baron. “Their experience, combined with the strong talent we constantly recruit, make our team atmosphere one-of-a-kind.”

As Baron reflects on the past 20 years, he is also looking firmly ahead towards the future. “We will continue to focus on cutting-edge technology and evolving case law, and we will continue those personal relationships that we have formed with our clients,” he explains. “While 20 years are behind us, we are looking forward to a lifetime of relationships and continued success.” For around-the-clock information and up-to-the-minute news about the firm, visit www.scottbaronassociates.com.
